23. MARY ANNA STEMMELEN #2257, b. 28 Feb 1852 in Mulhouse, Haut Rhin, Alsace, France, d. 10 Sep 1937 in Grosse Pointe Park, Wayne, MI. After her husband's death, she turned Weldon Station into a boarding house for railroad men that had 23 boarders, located near Ridgetown, ON. After her youngest child was killed by a train, she sold the boarding house and moved to Chatham where she founded Weldon's Fancy Goods Store at the bend on King St. Even in 1993, old folks in Ridgetown refer to the old boarding house as Weldon Station. She married JAMES EDWARD WELDON #2267, 27 May 1872 in Chatham, Kent, ON, Canada, b. 29 Aug 1846 in Weldon Station, Kent, ON, Canada, d. 29 Mar 1897 in Chatham, Kent, ON, Canada. JAMES: He originally was trained as a brickmason, but he purchased a grocery store at Weldon Station (near Ridgetown) which he operated until about 1882, when they moved to Chatham where he was an insurance agent, farm implement dealer, and auctioneer. The large family farmstead at Weldon Station was founded by his father, a native of Ireland, who came to the area with his wife and 6 children (John, Henry, William, Frank, and Mrs. William Lamb).

If his sister was the family historian, Ted has to be classed as the family adventurer for this branch of the family. He was a building construction superintendent for the State of Michigan, and a gentleman farmer at Holt, MI.

It was only after his retirement that he became a world traveler in earnest. The following is from a 1965 article in the Michigan State Journal:

Come January, Theodore X. Lareau ... packs his bags and takes off on a three to four month trip to distant parts of the world. He uses a world globe, National Geographic, and Venture magazines as his Baedekers. Usually he just decides what direction he will go ... New York, New Orleans, or Los Angeles. After he reaches there, he might decide to take a freighter, passenger steamship, or airliner for the trans-ocean voyage.

"I like to make my travel plans after I'm on my way. It costs more sometimes when you travel this way," he said, "but you have control over your own destinies. To me, it's more interesting." There are times when he joins a conducted tour in some particular foreign city. He also has gone on five safaris into Kenya, Mozambique, and other parts of Africa. Lareau said that the only hunting he has done has been with his camera.

For years, he and his wife traveled on vacation all over the United States, Mexico, and other parts of Latin America. Their last trip together was when they drove to New Orleans and took a United Fruit Lines freighter to Central America. After her death, he resumed his travels in 1962, when he boarded a Yugoslavian freighter in New York, and went to Tangiers, Morocco, Algiers, Tunisia, Libya, Spain, Italy, France and Portugal.

The following year, Lareau drove his car to Panama through Mexico, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, and Honduras. His 1964 trip was aboard a Japanese freighter that took him to Okinawa, Formosa, Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines. In 1965, he took a plane to Cairo, then traveled by camel, bus, plane, and train throughout Egypt, Greece, Sudan, Ethiopia, France, Germany and England.

At the time the article was written, he was planning to book passage on a freighter out of New York, with tentative plans to return to Egypt, but this time to go on to Saudi Arabia, Syria and the Holy Land.

During his travels, Lareau buys dolls and other gifts for his children and grandchildren. For his home, a 100-year-old farmhouse that he reconditioned by hand, he picks up wood and ivory carvings of Madonnas from many lands, and also collects ceremonial shields, marks, and other religious articles, especially from Africa.

He had a well-known disregard for American hotels when traveling. "You might as well stay at home if you travel that way," he has said, "I like to live with and get to know the natives of any country I visit, really talk to them, and get to know their country as they see it. It's really quite easy for a man traveling alone to find an interesting place to stay, and in most countries, many people are anxious to meet Americans and learn something about our country and its people." He married EDITH LOUISE BRODHAGEN #2220, 18 Jan 1922, b. 10 Sep 1895 in Battle Creek, Calhoun, MI, d. 21 Mar 1961 in Holt, Ingham, MI.
